

Winning Sale plumber holds on to his prize

Lucky plumber, Paul Morris of Sale, has won a Viessmann Vitodens 100-W boiler, after entering a competition in Installer magazine. The gas condensing combination boiler worth £1,354 was recently presented by Viessmann's Steve Taylor at plumbing and heating merchants, Plumbase in Altrincham. However, instead of using it in one of his customer installations, the FlameRite heating engineer plans to fit it into his own home.

"I never enter competitions and only entered this because my own boiler at home was starting to play up," says Morris. "I'm going to fit it just as soon as I get my roof fixed! As it happens, I'm a trained Viessmann installer and am familiar with their products so I'm very happy to have won such a new, top quality condensing boiler."

To win the competition, Morris had to answer a question about the length of Viessmann's warranty for its energy efficient Vitodens 100-W range. The answer is five years. If Greater Manchester homeowners are interested to learn more about the German-manufactured boilers, they now know a friendly face to ask!
